Other Ways to Prepare

Keep survival supplies on hand

Basic supplies should include a three- to seven-day supply of water, dried or canned foods and other essentials (don't forget supplies for your pets).

Prepare for long-term power outages

Consider purchasing a generator, and make sure you have an adequate supply of batteries.

Keep your vehicle's gas tank full

If you live in coastal areas and may need to leave quickly.

Establish an evacuation plan

Decide where you will go, when you will leave and how family members will contact each other once out of the area.

Check for structural leaks

Check doors, windows and walls for openings that could allow water inside.

Unplug electronics

Even if you have a surge protector, this is the best protection against surge-related damage.

Trim trees and shrubbery

Keep trees well pruned and not too close to your home.

Verify insurance coverage

Check your homeowner's policy, and purchase additional flood insurance.

Make a home inventory

Take photos of your home's contents, and write a detailed list of valuable items.

Secure important documents

Place passports, birth certificates, deeds, etc. in a waterproof, fireproof container.
